Introduction

Islamic society is founded on the principles of belief and righteous conduct. This connection between values and practice lies at the very heart of the Islamic way of life. To be a Muslim requires that one's faith be reflected in one's practice and daily moral conduct with other people.

We have the beautiful teachings of the Holy Qur'an and Prophetic Sunnah as our foundation. The challenges of modern times call for rebuilding the structure of our educational program on such a foundation as to fulfil our spiritual as well as worldly obligations.

Today we need an education system which can produce, Muslim Daee, Muslim Philosopher, Muslim Scientist, Muslim Economist, Muslim Jurist, Muslim Statesman, in brief, Muslim Experts in all fields of knowledge who would reconstruct the social order in accordance with the tenets of Islam.

The Islamic values education curriculum called for at Iqra focuses on personality and character development of children, close attention to the real needs and concerns of students, and preparation of students with the critical thinking and problem-solving skills needed to function successfully as Muslims in society.

Muslim educators and parents must develop a better understanding of how children grow and learn, we must understand the process of moral development and the methods of effective teaching and learning. Our children will not become moral individuals simply because we want or tell them to do so. They will become moral individuals by cultivating their minds and hearts, and by having opportunities to actually see and apply Islamic values in practice.

Knowledge is the most important thing in one's life. The Holy Prophet of Allah, Mohammed (saw) has said: "Talabul ilmi faridhatun ala kulli Muslim" it means: "Attainment of knowledge is a must for every Muslim" (Ibn Majah, Hadith no. 224). Keeping this in mind we have been trying to provide education at par with the international standards to students coming from different strata of the society. To inculcate high moral value, love for humanity, patience and perseverance.

Islam is not about we are better than you, Islam is about let me show something better for you

The Prophet Muhammad (SAW) said:
"Religion is very easy, and whoever overburdens himself in his religion will not be able to continue in that way. So you should not be extremists, but try to be near to perfection and receive the good tidings that you will be rewarded."
